

Chiang, Reds Reach Accord On Ending Of Hostilities

By SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Jan. 5 (P) — Chinese Communists and government leaders tonight reached an agreement on procedures for ending hostilities and restoring communications in strife-torn China, an official announcement said.

Individual representatives of the two factions have been appointed to confer on steps to carry out the cease-fire procedures.

Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. envoy, had conferred in swift succession earlier today with leaders of both delegations.

From Shanghai, Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. military forces in China, meanwhile announced that American ships would begin moving 26,000 Chinese government troops into Manchuria within 10 days.

Mongolia Freed

Airborne movement of other forces was scheduled to begin today.

Simultaneously the Chinese foreign office announced that China has recognized the independence of outer Mongolia, approved by a plebiscite provided under the recent Sino-Soviet treaty.

General Marshall, new U. S. envoy, conferred for an hour with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, reportedly discussing the Communist reply to Chiang's New Year's peace bid. Later Marshall talked for an hour with Gen. Chou En-lai, leader of the Communist delegation to the forthcoming peace parley. Both had welcomed Marshall as a mediator in current Chinese strife.

The two factions met formally again tonight.

Communist quarters here said their recent oral protests at the national thrust into Jehol province would be put into writing unless the offensive were halted at once. National sources today claimed further gains in the drive, including the capture of Pehiao 50 miles northwest of Chihnsien on the Chihnsien-Chengteh railroad.

Reds File Demands

Communist peace negotiators here are insisting that all means of communication be restored and that national blockades of Communist areas be lifted.

Lo Lung-chi, official spokesman for the Democratic league, representing several party groups, today asserted that Communist reservations were "fair," and said "we hope the two sides can come to an agreement; Marshall's influence can help a great deal."

Lo objected, however, to American help in moving National forces into Manchuria.

Asked about additional troops which he earlier had said would be needed for his U. S. army forces in China, Wedemeyer replied that 5,000 had been sent from Guam to Marine-occupied North China sectors to relieve high-pointers, and "there is going to be a constant flow" into the Shanghai area.

Chiang Kai-shek's government meanwhile tightened its grip on industrially-rich Manchuria.

A Chinese dispatch reported that National government forces, transported by air, were due today to take over Changchun, capital of Manchuria—weather permitting.

Borough Treasurer John H. Baschore, who was appointed for a four-year term, has two more years to serve in this capacity.

Best wishes to the County Library Association for a difficult job, well done.

COUNTY LIBRARY IS OPEN TODAY FOR INSPECTION

"Open house" is being observed this afternoon and this evening at the Adams County Free Library headquarters, 135 Carlisle street, with service to the public to begin Monday at the main library here and with branch libraries and deposit stations to be opened as rapidly as possible throughout the county.

Final approval of operating plans was given by the library's board of directors at its January meeting Friday evening in the main reading room at the library.

Persons from all parts of the county, visiting librarians and officials from the Pennsylvania State Library were expected to inspect the county library's first home between 1 and 9 p. m. today with members of the board and library committees on hand to receive the visitors.

Have 6,000 Books

At least two branches of the county library will be opened next week in two towns where borough councils have appropriated funds used to rent and equip a library room. The Abbottstown branch will open next Thursday and that in New Oxford on Friday, the board of directors was told Friday evening by Miss Kathryn Oiler, county librarian, who will be present to assist with the opening of both branches.

A shipment of 2,500 volumes from the state library at Harrisburg has increased to about 6,000 books the number on hand at the county library to date, Miss Oiler said. Additional books are being donated to the library or bought with library funds to increase steadily the supply of reading material until it reaches the goal of "a book for every person in the county." More than 1,000 volumes were received in the last month.

Special acknowledgment was made Friday evening to the board by Miss Oiler of the gift of "possibly 500 fine books" by the late Dr. Frank Clutz.

To Open Branches

Memberships are steadily being added to the library association and reports given the board Friday showed an additional $25 fee membership recently was subscribed.

Miss Oiler said that much of her time during this month will be devoted to the establishment of branch libraries and deposit stations in communities where quarters are found in stores, service stations, postoffices or other public places or in homes.

ARMY SLOWS UP DEMOBILIZATION

Washington, Jan. 5 (P)—The army slapped the brakes on demobilization today with a declaration that replacements would be insufficient to maintain necessary forces abroad at the present rate.

By full use of available shipping, all of about 1,553,000 overseas troops who are or will become eligible could be returned to the United States in three months, a War Department official said at a news conference.

Instead, the army plans to spread the returns over six months.

This slower rate combined with replacements will reduce total overseas strength to a planned minimum of 797,000 by July 1, Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins told reporters yesterday.

"Our overseas forces would be dangerously understrength in occupying hostile countries if all eligible men were to be returned before sufficient replacements arrived," the War Department information chief said.

County Tops E Bond Quota

Adams county went over the top in all phases of the Victory Loan campaign, smashing the E bond quota by $30,100, the state War Finance Committee informed the county committee by telephone late Friday afternoon.

Sales of E bonds soared to $380,100 in the closing days of the campaign thus topping the $350,000 quota by $30,100.

The county also went over the top in sales of bonds to individuals and in the Corporate bond quota but official figures were not available on Friday. As soon as the compilation is completed the county committee will be advised.

Unofficial tabulation of all bond sales during the closing drive placed total sales over the three million dollar mark.

Sgt. Black, a section chief with cannon company of the 126th Infantry Regiment, has seen action at Saldor, and Aitape, New Guinea; Morotai in the Netherlands East Indies; and Leyte and Luzon, Philippine Islands.

At the war's end, Black was still in action with his unit in the rugged Caraballo Mountains of northern Luzon. He left for the United States shortly before the 126th Infantry sailed for the Japanese home island of Kyushu to take up occupational duties in the zone of Kokura City.

Other speakers scheduled are Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, February 3, and Dr. Ralph Sockman, February 19.

Mr. Kovacs was born on the banks of the Danube. His father was Hungarian and his mother German. He received his formal education in Hungarian, German, Rumanian and Serbian schools. He came to America and completed his training at Yale Graduate School and the Juillard School of Music. He represented the Y. M. C. A. in Yugoslavia, and later traveled through nine European countries, studying social and economic conditions.

Fighting Prejudice

Mr. Kovacs returned to the United States by invitation of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. for a lecture tour, and has addressed more than 2,000,000 persons during the last five years, including an audience of 25,000 at Madison Square Garden. He is now giving his time and talents to spreading the message of democracy for the remedy of the blind hatreds and prejudices of Europe through the lecture platform. He will speak here on the theme: "The Challenge of Being an American." He will also speak to the high school student body during the afternoon.

Rooms for the remaining 132 veterans are being sought and the college and Chamber of Commerce made another appeal today to local residents to open up their homes for these young men who want to continue their high education at Gettysburg.

Those who have rooms are urged to communicate with Dean Tilberg at the college or notify the Chamber of Commerce. The need is urgent.

SEEK WORKERS FOR PULP AND PAPER OUTPUT

"Although the average wage being paid to workers in rural industries may be somewhat lower than many learned to expect from war plants in the larger cities during the war years, comparative living costs are all in favor of the rural dweller," Edgar A. Crouse, manager of the U. S. Employment Service here, said today.

Mr. Crouse's statement was made in conjunction with the current drive being conducted by the pulp and paper industry through the U. S. Employment office, to place 100,000 additional skilled and unskilled employees on its payrolls in woods and mill jobs.

"A recent Bureau of Census survey based on country and city families of average size and earning powers," according to the U. S. Employment official, "placed monthly expenditures for food by city families at $47.85. The average rural family was shown to pay out only about $33.78 each month for food."

Higher Rents

"Higher rents and entertainment costs swell the city's living costs even more," Mr. Crouse pointed out. The local employment manager also called attention to the high record of job stability established by the pulp and paper industry in the past.

"Even in the depression year of 1932," he said, "the employment index in the pulp and paper industry was 27.7 per cent higher than the combined index for all other manufacturing in the country."

The employment manager stated that openings in mills and forests in all parts of the state are now being registered with USES offices, thus making it easy for applicants to get "job service" regardless of where they want to work.

He emphasized the timeliness of his subject because of the war's effect on immigration and the million applications for citizenship now on file.

ACCIDENT RATE DOUBLED; HIGH SPEED BLAMED

Accidents investigated by state police of the Gettysburg sub-station during December doubled, going from 13 in December, 1944, to 26 the past month. In the 26 accidents 24 persons were injured and property damage was estimated at $8,481, Sgt. W. Kurt Duhrkoff, in charge of state police here, said.

There were no fatalities in connection with the December accidents in 1945, however, compared with one death in December, 1944, and one fatality in November, 1945.

Fifteen arrests were made as the result of state police accident investigations, on motor code violations.

Breaking down the causes attributed by state police to accidents investigated, Sgt. Duhrkoff said 11 were due to driving too fast for road conditions; seven for driving to the left of the center line of the highway; three for operating too close to the car ahead; two for violating the right of way rule and two for improper passing in the face of oncoming traffic.

More accidents occurred on Friday, Saturday and Sunday than on other days of the week.

Stamp Hobby Pays Off For C I Overseas Collectors

By HAL BOYLE

Manila, Jan. 5 (AP)—Many American soldiers overseas have found modest profits as well as entertainment in the pursuit of hobbies. This is particularly true of stamp collectors.

Soldiers with a good knowledge of stamp values have been able to enrich their own collections as well as turn a neat penny on occasion by judicious purchase of scarce postage issues in foreign lands.

One of those who has found travel broadening to the purse is Cpl. Nathan Deutsch, of Forest Hills, N. Y., who in civilian life operates a stamp shop in Rockefeller Center.

"I don't know of anyone out here who has struck a gold mine, however," said the 33-year-old corporal.

Popular With Troops
"Of course, some of the boys who didn't know quite what they were getting into are going to find when they get home that they loaded up on stuff that wasn't worth what they paid for it."

Stamp collecting nevertheless is surprisingly popular among the troops.

"We started a stamp club here last August," said Deutsch, "and until redeployment forced us to give it up we had a floating membership of more than hundred, ranging from privates to colonels."

There are five stamp auctions weekly in Manila, at which more than half the bidders are American soldiers. The soldier collectors also are welcome in the city's two stamp clubs and are invited often to the homes of Filipino members.

"We could get such invitations every night in the week if we wanted them," said Deutsch, adding that he himself always turned them down because "I can look at stamps all day but I don't want to talk about them all night too."

Collection Ruined
The corporal had to learn the hard way that the tropical climate is the stamp collector's worst enemy. "I paid $75 for the first batch I bought out here," he said. "I put them under my pillow and found them all stuck together next morning. Instead of valuable merchandise I just had an expensive, gummy souvenir."

Some Philippine collectors cannily invested modest fortunes in Japanese stamps during the occupation and have found it was perhaps the wisest safeguard for their money.

The fires which ravaged Manila destroyed many collections, but those that were kept intact are now mounting steadily in value, as some of the Japanese occupation issues are very scarce. One brings $40 at sales, and another regularly sells for $20.

"I know of one warrant officer who studied stamp dealing while stationed here," said Deutsch. "He put his savings into an accumulating stock and now he is going to make a business of it."

COUNTY LIBRARY

have made it impossible to secure a bookmobile with which to begin regular delivery to schools throughout the county immediately. Branch libraries, however, will be served regularly by auto or mail. A committee has been working for months to secure a bookmobile and is continuing its efforts.

Membership Not Required

Books may be borrowed from the library by any resident of Adams county—or by non-residents upon payment of a small fee. Library membership is not required of a borrower, board members emphasized.

Books may be borrowed in person or by mail from the main library or may be secured at any branch. A supply of books will be kept at each branch but all of the library's books are available to anyone in the county at any time through a branch or by contacting the main library. Books should be returned to the library or to the branch at which they were secured, it was explained.

Miss Oiler reported to the board on many new donations of "books, services, furniture and cash" to the library and said a coat rack is yet needed at the main library.

Acknowledge Gifts

The board acknowledged with thanks gifts from the following patrons during the last month: Mrs. Helen C. Corbett, Miss Martha Dickson, the Misses Dock, Mrs. Esther Eden, Rev. A. W. Geigley, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Grieb, Mrs. Ellen Haight, Mrs. Elizabeth Hennig, Mrs. Q. W. Hershey, Howard Kadel, Mrs. E. S. Lewars, Mrs. Edgar A. Miller, Miss Mildred Stoner, Miss Shirley Westrope and John Woods.

Library accounts are to be audited annually by the county auditors. The first audit will be begun Monday when the county officials meet to begin their annual task of examining all county financial records.

Mrs. E. S. Lewars, vice chairman, presided at Friday's board meeting in the absence of O. H. Benson, board president, who is now in Florida. The next board meeting will be held February 1.

Negro Scientist To Be Honored At Rally

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—The two Pennsylvania members of Congress instrumental in having today officially designated national George Washington Carver Day plan to attend a rally in Pittsburgh tomorrow in honor of the late slave-born Negro scientist.

Authors of the legislation were Senator Myers, (D), and Rep. Corbett, (R).

Corbett and Myers' resolutions to have Congress declare this day—the third anniversary of Carver's death—as George Washington Carver Day were inspired by the Pittsburgh branch of a Negro women's organization, the National Achievement Clubs, Inc.

The reason the date of Carver's death was elected to commemorate his contributions to agricultural and other sciences is that his birthday is not known.

Bones Picked Clean
Hundreds of blackened shells are stacked about Malinta tunnel, which is closed to the public because of the danger from falling rocks. In the grassy ravines and foxholes bordering the road leading out to "the tail" lie the bones of scores of Japanese soldiers killed during the American re-conquest of the island last spring. Ants have picked them clean.

Grass has grown over and covered the trolley tracks leading up to "topside." "Officers' row," where the ranking brass lived in concrete homes and enjoyed one of the most beautiful views in the Pacific, is deserted and bare. The great barracks and hospital lie in irrecoverable ruins.

The service historian of Corregidor, the fort that failed but failed grandly, is Pfc. Preston E. Onstad, Tacoma, Wash., who has set up an information tent where the island's story is explained to visitors.

"We were getting 500 visitors a day before the big rush home started," he said. "Now about 150 to 250 come out on good days."

"When the weather is nice the generals and admirals come out in their crash boats and hold beer picnics," he said.

COURT OKAYS PULLMAN SALE

Philadelphia, Jan. 5 (AP)—The nation's sleeping car business will soon belong—lock, stock and barrel—to a combine of 43 American railroads.

In its final decree, a special three-judge federal expediting court yesterday approved sale of the 7,500 Pullman, Inc.-owned sleeping cars to the railroads.

The decision climaxed more than five years of legal maneuvers, started on July 12, 1940, when Pullman, Inc., was decreed a monopoly in violation of the anti-trust laws. The firm decided to continue manufacturing sleeping cars and rid itself of the operating end.

Approval of the sale to the carriers for $75,000,000, however, may not be the end of the Pullman case as decreed by the court.

One or all of the three other bidders—Otis & Co., Cleveland banking firm; Standard Steel Spring company, of Coraopolis, Pa., and Gloré, Forgan and Co., Chicago banking house—may appeal the decision to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Meantime, operation of the sleeper fleet will be continued by Pullman until March 31 by permission of the court. This will give the railroad group time to organize its own management and operating set-up.

MAROONS LOSE 32-28 IN EXTRA FRAME AT YORK

Gettysburg high school's basketball team was knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten by York high 32-28 in an extra-period game played Friday evening at York. Previously the Maroons had won three games.

The teams were deadlocked 28-28 at the end of the regulation tilt, a foul toss by Raffensperger tying up the decision with about half a minute of play remaining. After about a minute of the extra period elapsed Barnes landed a long shot for the White Roses and about a minute later Hampton was left unguarded and scored an easy shot from beneath the basket to sew up the decision.

While the contest was a nip and tuck affair most of the way it was somewhat loosely played. The Maroons were off form in their shooting which proved costly.

Start Well
Coach Forney's lads started off as though they would repeat their earlier season decision over York by piling up an 11-3 lead in the first period. Gorman landed a free throw and Raffensperger followed with a goal. Joe Hess netted a trio of goals to send the locals into a commanding lead.

Paced by Barnes who scored three twin-pointers the York outfit steadily whittled the Maroon lead in the second period and just as the half ended Griffith looped a throw from behind the mid-court marker to cut Gettysburg's margin to 18-16.

Neither team could show consistent scoring form in the third and fourth rounds and scoring was at a minimum. Hess was ejected from the game on fouls late in the fourth period.

Scrubs Bow

The York reserves repeated an early decision over the Maroon Jayvees by scoring an easy 41-13 decision in the preliminary affair.

Next Tuesday the Maroons journey to Carlisle for a pair of games.

Conn Confident As His Training Begins

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 5 (AP)—The next heavyweight boxing champion of the world will be Billy Conn—believes Billy Conn, and he's banking on "them thar" hills of Arkansas to help him reach his goal.

The Pittsburgh battler, whose faulty strategy probably cost him the title almost five years ago, went into training here today for his June bout with Champion Joe Louis, which Conn says probably will be staged at New York's Yankee Stadium.

Arriving here yesterday with Trainer Fred Fierro and Manager Milton Jaffe, Conn declared he was "very confident" he would wallop the Brown Bomber this time.

"I definitely expect to win the fight," he said.

Henry Frnka Is Signed By Tulane

New Orleans, Jan. 5 (AP)—Tulane university has signed a new head football coach with a penchant for producing bowl teams, which Tulane needs to go with its nice, big Sugar Bowl stadium.

The new grid boss is Henry Frnka, who has steered his Tulsa university team into a post-season "classical" each of the five seasons he has coached at the Oklahoma school.

Meanwhile he has won three Missouri valley conference championships.

Appointment of Frnka was made known last night five hours after announcement that Claude "Little Monk" Simons, Jr., head coach at Tulane for four years, had relinquished the post to become director of athletics.

Frnka took the Hurricanes to the Sun Bowl in 1942, to the Sugar Bowl the following two years, the Orange Bowl in 1945 and the Oil Bowl this month.

The annual U. S. production of Swiss cheese amounts to 40,000,000 pounds.

In all the West Indies, poisonous snakes exist only on Martinique and St. Lucia.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

BOYS

Boys are doctors in the making.
Priests and parsons, too.
One of them will soon be taking
Work now given to you.

Left to run the streets unheeded.
Scorned by you and me.
And denied assistance needed.
Boys now hoodlums be.

Boys in gangs are fond of banding.
Rough and loud at play.
What they need is understanding.
Lest they go astray.

Boys are manhood in the shaping.
Wise or foolish, we
From this truth there's no escaping.
So their destiny.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE THRILL OF WONDER

In that delightfully written book
by Robert Gibbins, "Lovely Is the Lee," the author speaks of "a man who never lost an opportunity to wonder." What a fortunately gifted human being that man must have been!

There are many of us who never look into the face of the starry night without wondering. Ever is it new, ever is it magnificent, and ever is it a thing of wonder. Those billions of stars, each an entity to itself—and far beyond the reach of the naked eye, billions of other stars, planets, and creations about which we now know nothing. A great telescope, the greatest in the world, is now being finished, and no man yet knows what it will reveal.

Every note of a song bird, every grown flower, every variety of shrub or tree, every precious metal or stone, every change of Season, is a thing of wonder. I look out upon the great Atlantic each day now.
What a thing of wonder is this vast expanse of water. Its ebb tide, its silent power, its beauty, its changeable temper.

And what a thing of wonder is birth—the birth of anything—a human being, a flower, a tree, or an animal. I never listen to the radio without a thrill of wonder teeming through my consciousness. And greater wonders are yet to be!

People who never wonder certainly cheat themselves of one of life's great opportunities. The author of that book I have referred to takes a trip through the fascinating country of Ireland, or a portion of it, and every day's revelation is a thing of joy and wonder to him. It filled me with wonder as I read it.

It was the thrill of wonder that gave to such men as Thoreau, Muir, Hudson, Burroughs, Fabre and a host of others their zest for Nature,
and all that it revealed to them, through long years of life. Never did they cease to wonder. Life is continually enriched for us all so long as we never fail to wonder!

Claims Title As 'Champion' Picket

Chicago, Jan. 5 (AP)—Alex Orr, 47, said today that he probably is the country's champion picket.

Six days a week for the last three and a half years Orr has been on the job as a picket in front of the Peterson Auto Sales agency on South
Michigan avenue.

Orr estimated that in his picket duty of about one-third of a block alongside the agency's office he had walked enough to have circled the globe twice. He said he likes his job, believed it is good for his health
and he meets "all kinds of people."

The picket line was established in 1939 by Local 701 of the AFL Auto Mechanics Union, which charged the agency refused to grant a closed shop. Orr is the third picket who has marched back and forth in front of the agency.

by watching the motorist's pocket-
book throb.

Getting It Going

My experience starting a balky car recently may offer some suggestions in the event that you are similarly stranded. The first step was to undo what the driver had been doing to the cylinders. She had pumped so many times on the accelerator that the engine was overloaded with rich gas mixture. By cranking a minute or two with the throttle wide open (using the hand control) cylinders were cleared to a point where the engine fired, even though it ran poorly and started the muffler going into a series of explosions. That meant failure of the cylinders to fire their mixture completely. In uncovering the distribu-tor's innards I found that the breaker points were nearly shot. I roughed them up with the point of a knife, cleaned off some stray oil moved a loose condenser to a point where it couldn't interfere with the rotor and immediately the engine ran surprisingly well. My final step was to map the way to the nearest service station.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Because we are usually under a strain when the car is kicking up a rumpus it is most important to be 'on guard' against jumping to wrong conclusions. I recall a recent case where a friend was caught with a balky motor. After repeated attempts to crank he suddenly pointed to the gas gauge and, as if finding the answer all wrapped up in cellophane, declared: 'Here's our trouble. The car's almost out of gas. I think he was actually unhappy when I reminded him that because he had been cranking so much the battery was weak. Naturally the gas gauge wasn't registering accurately, showing much less fuel than was actually in the tank.'"

Sweet Mystery Of Noises

I hope you're not as sensitive about car noises as I am, but if ever you are rolling along a secondary road
at low speed and hear a strange rumbling which suggests a flat tire, don't be alarmed. Just look at the highway carefully and you'll probably find that a tractor has been over the road and has cut ridges in it. The better the roads on your car's tires the more vibration these ridges will make. At night you might not be able to see the ridges at all and be thus all the more mystified.

These Little Explosions

Perhaps fewer people would worry over the current problem of what to do with atomic energy if they realized that there is enough energy in any gas tank to blow the car sky
high. As Rev. Ralph W. Sockman said in a recent radio sermon, what counts is making gasoline useful as a series of little explosions. Many things are fatal in uncontrolled doses. There's a message, too, in that concept of the series of little things. Apply it to the care of your car and you have found the answer to meet the otherwise staggering problem of keeping it going efficiently.

When You Go Traveling

Next time you leave your car in a public garage make a note whether there are any puddles of oil or water under it. Next morning you won't be thinking something is leaking from the innards. It may use up a little more oil but your engine will thank you for remembering to lift your foot abruptly from the accelerator pedal now and again when rolling along the open road at a good clip.
Suction within the cylinders allows the pistons to suck oil up from the

Punctures No Obstacle

A United Kingdom company is reported to be investigating the possibilities in a tire that has such strongly supported sidewalls that it can roll freely and safely even when deflated. Such tires were used widely during the war and their success suggests unusual possibilities in peacetime application. Special body construction of the tire combined of a soft rubber that conforms to the shape of the tire and prevented from slipping by means of a hard lock.

Tests at 50 miles per hour showed that such tires, when punctured, remained steady and normal handling control. Some observers believe that the loss in riding ease with such tires could be offset by use of sub-

Toll Bridge Plans
Go Before Court
Harrisburg, Jan. 5 (AP)—The commonwealth's multi-million dollar program to buy up the last remaining privately operated toll bridges in the state was scheduled Friday for review in Dauphin county court in a four-day session beginning January 29.

The Peoples Bridge company of Harrisburg brought action last month asking the court to ascertain whether $7,000,000 allocated from the motor fund for bridge purchases is adequate to buy the remaining ten spans.

The court at the same time was requested by the company to restrain the state from proceeding with a proposed agreement to buy the Sunbury toll span for $650,000.

The suit named Highways Secretary
John U. Shroyer, Auditor General
G. Harold Wagner and State Treasurer Ramsey S. Black as defendants.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

"The Daltons Ride Again," announced as one of the outstanding screen attractions to come from Hollywood this season, is due Monday at the Majestic theatre. Made by Universal, the studio which produced the former Dalton picture, "When The Daltons Rode," the new film is said to be even more exciting than its predecessor.

Alan Curtis, Lon Chaney, Kent Taylor and Noah Beery, Jr., appear as the Dalton brothers. Martha O'Driscoll has the top feminine role while other distinguished players in the cast include Jess Barker, Thomas Gomez and John Littel.

The original screenplay by Roy Chanslor and Paul Gangelin, deals with the fatal raid on Coffeyville, Kansas, in 1892. It was during this bloody foray that three of the Daltons were slain. The survivor, Emmett, lived to describe the adventures of Marco Polo," his rollicking gang's destruction in Coffeyville.

WEDNESDAY

The screen, which lately has focused a majority of its bigger productions on biographical subjects, has seen many remarkable portraits of characters taken from the past.

Few of these historic personalities, however, enjoyed a life more significant and romantic than the Marco Polo so few people seem to know, whom Samuel Goldwyn has chosen as the hero of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," his rollicking adventurous romance which brings Gary Cooper to the Majestic theatre on Wednesday.

THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Betty Hutton, the incendiary blonde bombshell, stars in Paramount's glamorous comedy-with-music, "The Stork Club," which is due to arrive next Thursday at the Majestic theatre.

"The Stork Club," produced by B. G. DeSylva and directed by Hal Walker, tells a super-Cinderella story about a hatcheck girl in the world-famous night spot and an eccentric millionaire. According to all reports, it is one of the most entertaining films to come out of Hollywood in a long time.

Barry Fitzgerald plays the millionaire and the role is said to be as lovable as the one with which he won the Academy Award in "Going My Way." Don DeFore has the romantic lead and other important parts are filled by Robert Benchley, Bill Goodwin as Sherman Billingsley, the Stork Club's famous host, Iris Adrian, and Andy Russell.

Enchanted Journey

Chapter 16

He said, "Well, now, what was it you wanted to see me about?"

She didn't answer for a long time. She was beginning to wonder, herself, why she had come. She didn't understand Burk Angus at all. He was the only man she had ever met by whom she did not feel entirely approved. The feeling that he did not like her made her nervous and uneasy.

Burk waited and Edith continued to stare out across the lawn and wish she had not come. The gaunt shadows of the age-old trees swept across the grass as if with caressing fingers. The bluegreen spruces touched shoulders with lindens, poplars and oaks. Sparrows darted and chirped from the vines along the porch and the tall chimneys as if sure of being on friendly ground. Which was more than Edith, herself, felt at the moment.

Everyone said that Dr. Angus, Burk and Barbara's father had gotten the place at a bargain, for though its bricks were old and faded, the lines of the house would be good for generations and the furniture which went with the purchase was priceless.

Dr. Angus had come from Pennsylvania in answer to a call for a physician in the community during the first World War. The Anguses had been so charmed with the peaceful valley that they had remained. Now, since Barbara's marriage and the death of their parents, only Burk was left to enjoy the beautiful old place.

Josie had told Edith all this and she was thinking of it now as she stood there. When Burk came back, she turned and took a chair facing him, regretting that she had come. For now, in the light of Burk's attitude toward her, she could find no words to say the thing she had on her heart.

Burk, sensing her difficulty, took pity on her and began to talk of topics of the day. Suddenly she spoke quickly and sharply, with a toss of head like her father. "Does—does your sister have to endure episodes like last night often?"

"So, I'm told," he answered drily, jabbing tobacco into his pipe and spilling a little pool of it on the polished floor as he so often did when perturbed. "Perhaps you know the freedom of your father's house is not mine."

She flushed. His tone implied that with the well-known arrogance of the Lacey she had assumed erroneously that the freedom of his house was hers.

"It's all so stupid and foolish!" she said impatiently. "I came here this morning because I wanted you to know how much I, personally, appreciated what you did last night."

He shrugged. "You're making too much of it. I would have done as much for anyone I found so."

"Yes, I suppose you would. But knowing something of how you must regard my father—" She looked at him suddenly, deeply, and he saw something of that part of her mother she so longed to be. "I wanted you to know, too, that Barbara and I are friends. That I think she's a wonderfully fine person and—" she swallowed with difficulty and added, "and she's going to have a baby!"

With a muttered exclamation Burk sprang to his feet. This, then, had been what Barbara had wanted to tell him when she had come down the last time. He supposed some unconsiderate remark of his had deterred her, and cursed himself for a blind, stumbling fool.

"Thank you for telling me," he said simply.

"I—I thought you should know," she went on lamely. "I want to go back to New York." "I want to go little. I'm homesick. I guess for my mother. But I'm going to stay if Barbara needs me!"

"That's generous of you!"

"I thought perhaps you'd feel better about her if—if you knew someone up there is—is looking after her."

"Yes, of course. I can't thank you enough."

Her face was burning. He did not believe in her sincerity. She could tell by the way he answered her. To him she was just another Lacey, mouthing meaningless, lightly-spoken words. She wondered why this knowledge upset her so.

"You're not happy at Roselands?" he asked.

"I don't know. I haven't been there very long, you see. My mother married again just before I left and I felt pretty much—well—left out of things. I guess. So I was glad to come."

"She's lonely," he thought. "In spite of trying to appear confident, she's not sure of anything. She hasn't gotten her bearings."

Edith went on. "I thought at first that Roselands was the loveliest place on earth. There seemed to be so much peace and beauty and quiet—as—as there is here at this moment."

His heart gave a little lurch. So she liked peace and beauty and quiet, too!

"And at other times—like last night—I'm so bewildered—I thought my father and I, being so much alike in appearance—I hoped that—"

"Don't build up any hopes about Whit Lacey," he said harshly. "He'll never be any different!"

He's right, she thought. Whit was not any kinder to Barbara than he had been to Laura. After all these years, it was not to be expected that he would change. She felt a deep hopelessness about it.

Mrs. Maxon came in, bringing a tray on which were two tall tinkling glasses.

"Aren't you going to join us?" Burk asked.

"I'm afraid I haven't time now," she answered. "I'm canning peas this morning, Miss Lacey. You'll excuse me if I hurry back."

Edith emptied her glass, set it down and rose to go. "I'm sorry if I've kept you from your work," she said.

"It doesn't matter." And now he found himself floundering for words. "I—I thank you for coming and—and for telling me about Barbara."

He helped her up on Nancy's broad back and Edith said goodbye, feeling as forlorn as she had ever felt in her life. She sensed that he was glad she was leaving. She had hoped that she and Burk Angus might be friends. She had been drawn to him by some strange, illusive quality she could not define. But they were not friends—never could be, apparently. To him she was just another Lacey!

As she rode into the stables at Roselands, she saw that Whit Lacey was standing waiting to speak to her.
